Freshman Edition Class of 2020

Welcome from President Stimpert

Dr. Larry Stimpert College President

It is a privilege to be joining Hampden-Sydney College, and it is great to have officially arrived on The Hill. I appreciate the welcome many of you extended to my family, and I'm pleased that I was able to get to campus this past spring to visit and to meet with some of you. Over the next few months, I look forward to meeting and getting to know many more of you, to welcoming our newest students to this special College, and to learning about your aspirations for your college years and beyond.

My appreciation for liberal arts colleges began during my undergraduate days at Illinois Wesleyan University. Faculty and staff members took a personal interest in me, recognized my strengths, challenged me to improve on my weaknesses, and pointed me to opportunities that would allow me to get the most from my college years. Those four years opened an entire world of possibilities. One influential faculty member encouraged me to pursue an academic career, and so in a very real sense, my college years made me who I am. For more than two decades, I have devoted my career to the advancement of liberal arts colleges, serving for many years as a faculty member in the Economics and Business Department at Colorado College, and more recently serving as the vice president for academic affairs at DePauw University.

From my conversations this past spring, I know you are having this same kind of educational experience here at Hampden-Sydney. The stories I heard about the transformative impact on you of our faculty and staff members were limited only by the amount of time I had to meet with you.

As you know, our College has a rich legacy. Our distinctive mission "to form good men and good citizens" was penned by our first president in 1775, and this mission is as vital and important for our society today as at any time in our history. Since its founding, Hampden-Sydney has prepared generations of young men of character to become leaders in the organizations for which they work and the communities in which they live. You have every right to feel proud of this history. Your accomplishments—the large number of you who are performing at the Dean's List level; your success in our labs, on stage, at the Ethics Bowl, and in other scholarly endeavors; your participation on our sports teams; and the internships and jobs you have this summer—at test to your talents and to the continuing vitality of our great College.

As we anticipate the 250th anniversary of the founding of the College, we will be working to enhance our reputation and recruiting efforts so that many more young men are aware of the extraordinary educational opportunities we offer here. We'll also be working to strengthen our financial position to afford the aspirations our faculty and staff have for our educational program and to ensure Hampden-Sydney will prosper for another

GUEST SUBMISSIONS

250 years. I look forward to working with you, our faculty and staff members, our alumni, and other college constituencies to determine how we can best accomplish these ambitious goals.

At the same time, I want you to know that I arrive at Hampden-Sydney with many hopes for our College. Here are just a few of my aspirations, which I will describe in more detail at our opening convocation and future meetings with you:

First, Hampden-Sydney College should be a place where every student thrives. We will be a welcoming community for all students, but more importantly, this should be a college where you soon feel connected, find your niche, and become a part of our remarkable brotherhood. Our desire is for all of you to be connected with this special college through courses, faculty and staff mentors, RAs, learning communities, friendships, and in many other ways.

Second, I believe we can craft an even more extraordinary and distinctive educational program. I already see that this College lives its mission "to form good men and good citizens" in an authentic way. Something meaningful occurs here at the intersection of your in-class and out-of-class experiences, so that we educate the whole student—the intellectual, yes, but also the physical, social, emotional, moral, and spiritual dimensions. In the next few weeks and months, I want to engage you in discussions and plans for how our distinctive academic community can offer you an even more remarkable educational experience.

Third, we need to strengthen pathways to vocation. I believe the liberal arts education we offer at Hampden-Sydney is the nest preparation for a life of meaning and service. And, we know that students who feel a calling and identify a bigger purpose for their life are much more engaged in their studies. So, even as you are engaged in your studies, we need to help you discern your gifts, identify your vocational interests, and prepare to be competitive for career opportunities and graduate study.

Fourth, and above all, I wish us to live even more boldly in our mission "to form good men and good citizens." Our Honor Code asks you to take on responsibilities for student self-government. Our community standards hold you to high expectations. Gentlemanly conduct, self-control, the accepting of responsibility for one's actions, holding one another accountable—these are all important aspects of a life of character and prerequisites to becoming a leader of others.

On these and many other topics, I am eager to engage in discussions with you as together we forge an even more distinctive Hampden-Sydney College.

I wish you the best for the remaining weeks of summer, and I look forward to welcoming you for the first time, or for your return, to The Hill. And, I wish for all of us an extraordinary adventure during this coming academic year.

Uncharted 4: A Thief's End

Uncharted 4: A Thief's End has been one of the most anticipated games of 2016. Game creator and developer Naughty Dog described the game as Nathan Drake's "greatest adventure. One that will test his physical limits, his resolve, and ultimately what he's willing to sacrifice to save the ones he loves." The final installment in the beloved series on PlayStation does not disappoint. It hits players like bolt of lightning with its stunning visuals, intriguing story, solid gameplay, and is a powerful end to an amazing franchise.

The game continues the story of treasure hunter Nathan Drake several years after his last adventure. He is retired now, and living a normal life with his wife Elena Fischer. Suddenly, his world is turned upside down when his older brother Sam, long believed to be dead, reenters his life. However, the reunion is short and sweet as Sam reveals that he needs Nate's help on a quest to find Libertalia, the lost pirate colony that contains the treasure of Captain Henry Avery. Just like that, Nate is forced back into a world of thieves, mystery, and danger.

Like past games in the series, Uncharted 4's gameplay consists of exploration, puzzle-solving, and combat. Nate can run, jump, climb, swim, and use guns as well as his fists to fight enemies. The series is known for its signature gunfights, which make up a large portion of each game. Just as expected, the gunfights in Uncharted 4 are adrenaline rushing, and a lot of fun. As always, players will have to be on the top of their game when they encounter groups of mercenaries shooting at them if they want to survive, using various firearms such as pistols, shotguns, and assault rifles to defeat them. The combat in Uncharted 4 has been refined to the point where it is as realistic as it's ever been. Enemies are smarter, and can better counterattack your own attacks, especially in hand to hand combat. They are also more alert, often seeking the player out if they suspect anything amiss in the area. Fortunately, the game introduces a system that allows players to mark the locations of enemies so that they can plan their approach carefully.

In addition, new elements have been added to the series, which play an important role in the game. A new tool for Nate to use is the grappling hook, which the player will use to cross over many large gaps. This is a nice touch to the series, and can even be used when fighting enemies.

Another cool feature of the game is the introduction of vehicles. Throughout the game the player will drive vehicles like a jeep and a speedboat. This was probably my favorite addition to the series. It really spiced things up, and allowed players more freedom as well as a faster way to travel. Moreover, it enhanced the exploration aspect of the series. Uncharted has always been known for providing players with vivid trips through dozens of locations like Nepal, France, the Himalayas, Yemen, etc. Uncharted 4 is no exception. It too has a variety of countries, and locations for players to explore. This time around however, the developers have expanded on these locations to allow the player a better chance to see all that they have to offer. With the ability to drive vehicles like the jeep, the player can not only explore these locations more thoroughly, they can also experience them at a greater level.

Uncharted 4 has been noted for its outstanding graphics, and for good reason. The game has without a doubt the best graphics I've ever seen in a video game. There were times when I felt like I was watching a movie instead of playing a game because the visuals were so realistic. These graphics only enhanced the beautiful level design. From the mountains of Scotland, to the wild plains of Madagascar, to the lost city of Libertalia, the artistic design in Uncharted 4 is breathtaking in every way imaginable. The amount of detail that Naughty Dog used in creating this world goes beyond anything that's ever been done in a video game. The detail is so extreme, you can actually see the veins in the character's arms. Not only is this an artistic achievement, it's a technical one as well. One that will surely influence other developers in future games.

As mentioned earlier, Uncharted 4 is the final game in the Uncharted series. It's bittersweet to see it all end, but I'm very happy with the way that it concluded. This final adventure like all the others in the series is one hell of a ride; one fans will never forget. Furthermore, it's a fitting conclusion for our beloved treasure hunter. Thank you, Nathan Drake. It's been a blast.

Springs Sports Recap: Playoff Edition

Spencer Connell '17
Sports Editor

Spring 2016 was an exciting time on the Hill, especially since the spring sports teams took center stage as the weather improved. The Hampden-Sydney Baseball and Lacrosse teams had memorable campaigns this past year, which were both improvements from 2015. We pick up the action from the lacrosse field.

The 2016 lacrosse season was the final season with Ray Rostan at the helm. Rostan retired at the conclusion of the season after 37 years of coaching lacrosse, 32 of those years spent on the Hill. Rostan and the Tigers opened the season against eventual national champions Salisbury in a game in Richmond, Virginia, losing 12-7. However, that loss did not dampen the team's spirit, as the squad managed to pull together a remarkable 13-6 record, going 7-2 in conference play. H-SC made it to the ODAC semifinals in Roanoke, Virginia, only to be stopped by the Washington & Lee University Generals.

The Tigers had a memorable group of seniors who managed to keep both the offense and defense alive throughout the season. Jake Kofert (Huntersville, NC) and Thomas Passenant (Charlotte, NC) both played crucial roles in the 2016 campaign, and they were both named as honorable USI-

LA All-Americans. Kofert tallied 51 points (34 goals, 17 assists), and he participated in the 2016 USILA/Nike North-South Game. Kofert finished his H-SC career with 124 points (81 goals, 43 assists). Thomas Passenant provided a solid defensive foundation for the Tigers, tallying 50 groundballs and 23 forced turnovers. In addition to those two, Ian Levin (Chapel Hill, NC), Hunter Brown (Charlottesville, VA), Kevin Wilhelm (Burke, VA), Kyle Fraser (Salem, VA), and Mitch Renfrow (Charlotte, NC) were all named All-ODAC players. Coach Rostan also grabbed an honor from his final season being named the ODAC Coach of the Year and a USILA/Nike North-South Legend. He finished his coaching career with a 342-197 record, 302-172 at H-SC. His son, Jason Rostan '03 will take over head coaching duties in the 2016-17 season.

On the diamond, the H-SC baseball team had a memorable season that was an improvement over their 2015 campaign. The Tigers rode a 28-15 record (12-8 ODAC) all the way to the ODAC tournament championship; however, the dream run came to a halt at the hands of arch rival Randolph-Macon in the championship game. Nonetheless, H-SC endured the long baseball season that included numerous highs and lows. Seniors Lee Carneal (Charlottesville, VA) and Reggie Johnson (Dunnsville, VA) earned ABCA All-South Region Team honors thanks to their impressive performances. Carneal batted .376 and tallied 53 hits. He led the team in doubles (11), RBIs (37), and walks (25). Johnson maintained composure on the pitching mound racking up 77.1 innings with 2 complete games, a 2.91 ERA, 66 strikeouts, and 19 walks allowed. He finished the season with a 4-3 record, and has continued his baseball career after graduating by signing a contract with the Houston Astros organization. He first reported to Florida for the Gulf Coast League, then he moved up to join the Greenville Astros of the Appalachian League in Greenville, TN. As of August 14, 2016, Johnson has played 11 games for the Greenville Astros sitting on a 2-2 record with a 3.07 ERA.

The Tiger lacrosse and baseball teams will return to action in February 2017 aiming for their respective ODAC titles as well as cementing legacies for the rising seniors.

What to Expect at an H-SC Athletic Event

Spencer Connell '17
Sports Editor

Welcome to Hampden-Sydney, Class of 2020 and new students. So you find yourself here on the Hill and you might wonder what the athletics picture is like. Well, for starters, there are 10 sports teams that all participate in the Old Dominion Athletic Conference (ODAC) of the NCAA's third division (DIII). We have baseball, basketball, soccer, football, lacrosse, cross country, swimming, golf, tennis, and wrestling. Between these sports, H-SC has seen its teams rack up 30 ODAC titles and appear in the NCAA playoffs 40 times. This historical success is due, in part, to the excellent coaching staff and the determination among the student-athletes to give it their all every game. This means that H-SC has seen 161 of its student-athletes named All-Americans, and that number continues to grow every year, along with the large batches of players named to All-ODAC teams, both traditional and academic. Throughout the year, students might find themselves stressed out with monstrous workloads; however, there is always a sport that grabs the attention of the community, no matter the season. The fall is always exciting because football and soccer are in full swing. Football has one of the most unique settings for tailgating, as fans, alumni, and students will park behind Cushing Hall in the Founders' Lot along with tailgating action behind the Circle, across from Kirby Fieldhouse. It is always refreshing to see the smiles and hear the laughter of H-SC football fans on an autumn Saturday (dressed to the nines, no less). Soccer has a more relaxed atmosphere, especially on the turf field, as fans line up along the fence to catch the action and cheer on the Tiger soccer team. Cross-country has meets throughout the south, and the team usually hosts a 5k race during Family Weekend (September 10 this year), which is always a hit when the weather cooperates. Golf and Tennis have warm-up events and meets in the fall to work out their skills before things get serious in the spring. The winter is almost always about basketball. Tiger basketball is something else as alumni, faculty, and students gather in Fleet Gym to cheer on the basketball team. Things heat up after Christmas break every year because of intense conference play, and an even more intense student section during pivotal games. Every year, the Tigers aim for a top spot in the conference in order to punch a ticket to the NCAA tournament.

Nonetheless, it is always a fun setting, especially with faculty cheering just as loudly, if not louder than the students. Even though basketball makes the headlines, the swimming team hits the pool in the winter. The swim team travels around the south for their meets and there is usually one event held on the Hill every year. The spring is just as exciting as the fall because two of the most interesting sports dominate the headlines: lacrosse and baseball. Lacrosse games are fast-paced and action-packed. There is never a dull moment at a Hampden-Sydney lacrosse game.

No matter the setting, either Everett Stadium or Hellmuth-Gibson Field, lacrosse games draw decent crowds, usually filled with parents and members of the Face Off Club. Baseball games are relaxed, and there is prime seating behind home plate and on the hill behind the H-SC dugout. When the weather improves, a group of guys will sit atop the left field perch and enjoy the game on a couch (that is the 100% truth). Hillside seating is also available by the tennis courts, which is a prime spot during tennis matches. All in all, the point is that you have made here to the Hill for some of the most exciting and challenging times of your lives. When it is time to enjoy some leisure time, the athletics here are filled with a family atmosphere. The Tiger family is one big family, and there is always someone willing to welcome you to their tailgate or save a seat for you. Enjoy the sports we have to offer, and if you are interested in joining a team, contact the coaches for additional information.
